

Human Impacts Institute Party

11/18/2011

So, I've been on a major networking kick lately. And when I was browsing the internet(s) for sustainability and entrepreneurship events near me, I stumbled across my neighbor: The Human Impacts Institute run by Tara DePorte. Literally two blocks away from me, Tara runs an incredible think- and do-tank that also has a spirit of celebrating creativity alongside sustainability, just like us at Susty Party.

(You can tell they're my neighbors in Williamsburg, right?!)

So, we connected to partner with them on their annual benefit. And it's tonight - yes, Friday, November 18th, 2011! So come get down and party with this gorgeous crew and Susty Party's sponsored biodegradable tableware and composting.

Where: Causey Contemporary Gallery, 92 Wythe Avenue, Williamsburg, Brooklyn

When: Friday, Nov 18th, 6pm-10pm

Tickets available at the door ($25)

Expect appetizers and drinks, live performance art, music and dancing from DJ Shiran Nicholson. Silent auction prizes, include an iPod touch, green cleaning services, original artwork, and much more! All ticket sales will support their 2012 programs. Learn more.

Love, Emily

Link to Article: <http://www.sustyparty.com/blogs/news/4627362-human-impacts-institute-party>