

FIVE OF NYC'S GREAT GREEN SECRETS

07.26.2011

Jessica Biele, Blogger for The Climate Group, hand-picks five of the best non-profit organizations in New York City that you may not have heard about before. But don't keep it all quiet, spread the word!

Jessica writes:

There are countless eco-friendly community focused projects in New York City, ranging from environmentally friendly treats for pets to affordable organic and Fairtrade building products for the home; some are more practical than others, but they're all part of a good cause. Here's my pick of the best non-profit organization community projects in New York City that you've probably never heard of...

1. One smaller group that I feel is doing local communities a lot of good is NYC Climate Coalition - a project which is totally dedicated to achieving a carbon neutral NYC. Something I'm sure we'd all like to achieve! The group creates partnerships between different NYC-based organizations that are working on issues surrounding those of climate change. They are working hard to find sustainable energy sources and educating the people of NYC in their personal policies and to help them achieve their goal. Group's like this are crucial to the development of the City, as New York City has such a dense population.

<http://www.nycclimate.org/about.php>

Find full-length article at:

<http://www.climateweeknyc2011.org/news/blog/five-nycs-great-green-secrets>